Rehabilitative Services

Tanya Smith is a consulting Physical Therapist. She sees patients and oversees the work of physical therapy assistants (PTA). Physical therapy is a service to patients of our hospital, clinic, and Therapy Building.

Tanya Smith, PT

Tanya Smith decided in the ninth grade to join a career that helped people. "I knew I wanted to do something that was active and not at a desk." The Lawton native found that job fulfillment as a licensed Physical Therapist. She is in her 25th year of helping injured or ill people improve their movement and manage their pain.

Physical therapists use exercises, stretching maneuvers, hands-on therapy, and equipment to ease patients' pain and help them increase their mobility.

Smith sets up the plan of care, outlining the patient's goals and the expected outcomes of the plan. The actual treatment is provided by the combined efforts of Smith and the physical therapy assistants she supervises. "I write the treatment plan and discharges. I come back to see the patient and do updates to their plan of care."

Smith also consults with Mercy Hospital Healdton and with public schools in the Pauls Valley area.
