New Emergency Respirator Offers Two-Way Breathing Support

Deep Breath In and Out: Respiratory Therapist Robert Umphrey and Department Head Michelle Lively demonstrate the setup of the Emergency Room's new Philips Respironics V60 machine. This is for seriously ill patients who can breathe on their own but need extra support. It is the hospital's first stand-alone breathing device with dual (bipap) settings: one for helping air move into the lungs, and the second for helping air move out of the lungs.
